Biography

Lara Lane-Kent is the daughter of Superman and Lois Lane. Though she was murdered before ever being born, a glimpse into a dream world showed her father what his life and the world would have been like if that fateful day in Metropolis had gone differently.

Injustice Comic

Injustice: Gods Among Us

Lara is mentioned several times throughout the game's storyline in reference to her and Lois' death at Superman's hands due to the Joker's insane actions. She is never called by name, just referred to as Superman's unborn child and "Baby Kent" in her gravestone.

Powers and Abilities

- Superhuman strength, speed, stamina and durability
- Flight
- Invulnerability
- Heat and X-Ray Vision
- Enhanced Senses

Appearance

As the child of Kal-El and Lois Lane, Lara resembles both of her parents to a degree but primarily inherited her father's dark hair and blue eyes. She wears several different versions of the traditional Supergirl costume throughout her super-heroics.

Trivia

- In the prologue of the storymode, Superman refers to his unborn child as his son, though this is the only instance where the gender of the baby is specified. Clearing Classic Mode shows a special cutscene of Superman flashbacking to Lois and the child's graves, with Lara's only being marked as 'Baby Kent'.
